

The god killers

By Elijah Raman Putnam

Chapter 1

*This tale starts 10 years ago while our heroes are trying to stop a crisis or maybe they might make it worse . . .

Mark: "Eric come on we need your help right now. The god is starting to attack the nearby blacksmith village (this village is called the golden village of smithing)."

Eric: "I'm coming right now. You have to hold him off for just a bit more time. I'm getting closer. I'm about 880 yards away from the location."

Mark: "I really don't think that i could hold her in place for that long but i'll try to do it."

As Mark starts to run over and try to cut the shins of this god he suddenly gets stopped by someone or something for just enough for the god to spot him and swiftly try and stomp on him, but mark was able to get free and sprint just fast enough that he barely escapes but in the process. He lost the only weapon that could damage the biggest and most powerful god of them all. While trying to get the weapon back he gets stabbed in the chest and gets captured by that thing again, which leads to him getting spotted by the god again and almost dying. Then, Eric came and threw a dagger at the god. The dagger is made of an ore called maginite which is the weakness to most gods, so the dagger killed the god instantly causing it to fall flat on its back but the god fell on the town and killed every person except for the blacksmiths and everybody near the well they built. While Eric and Mark sighed in relief the village was filled with chaos and sounds of despair. So Eric and Mark decided to revive the townspeople but also rebuild their village entirely and in return they could come and get any weapon forged or upgraded whenever they liked on any year or day

The Pain of being the known heroes of the state

After the battle the two heroes were exhausted and went to relax at a local inn where they were contemplating about what to do next and also wondering the most important question they had in their mind at the time was where Bob and Jake were. Meanwhile, Bob is trying to get the best enchant on his maginite Barrett M82 and Maginite bullets failing countless times while Jake is at the bar drinking beers and margaritas to pass the time before another god is reported. around the time a titan is reported its the dead of night so almost everyone is awake except for one person jake he is wide awake and he head shots the god before it can cause any havoc.the reason why he is awake at this hour is because of a weird ability he has which any hours of sleep he has the energy of the hours of sleep he gets and because the way you level up the ability is by staying awake for an amount of hours he has made it to were anytime he sleeps for 12 hours he can stay awake for 12,000 hours. The whole night titans came to that town and tried to attack the sleeping citizens but Bob shot every last one of them while everyone slept so Bob realized that the titans only came at night so in the morning he told this to Jake and he was ecstatic about the news. But then later at night none of them came then realized something else that the gods were scared of them and they knew that they were going to have to move and try and find a different village they could protect so the next morning they moved and decided to make their own village in the middle of the forest and hunt titans their.

Chapter 3

The life inside and outside the towns

Bob: There were many differences about the places we lived and the experiences that happened one of them was were two of the gods that were attacking the other city found our house we built and thought they could kill us easily but they were very mistaken and we ended up making them build our house which would be the size of a foot or an accurate size representation would be a mansion and after they finished i shot them both they tried to run from us meanwhile Mark and Eric were traveling to another village they were ambushed bt 5 gods the thought they could take them on until they saw an evolved god leading them all and they ran for it because they needed a more rarer ore than maginite they needed lava ingots to kill those gods and they ended up at our wooden mansion and i needed to help them so he killed all the small ones and prayed and shot one of his thousands of gold bullets which killed the god which not only surprised myself but the others as well and then we knew something that their biggest weakness was gold.

Chapter 4

The weakness of all the gods but one.....

Ten years later: the gods have been destroying cities and killing people at 10 times the speed than usual they look like they have evolved to go at mach ten speeds whenever they feel like they are in any sort of danger so I made the floor around the base covered in gold so they wouldn't be able to kill me while the rest of them went to help people and died in the process. I forgot to tell you this that the gods corpses disintegrate after a few minutes but the most powerful god has been roaming around for a hours and he has tried to break my wall down multiple times and today he has done it successfully and i have been hiding for the past hours and i'm pretty sure that that thing might find me soon and will kill me most definitely and all of my friends and my family are most likely dead by now and i will most likely be the last and final victim they kill by this time the world is probably in ruins so i can't help people or try to fight back i think i should be dead when i said this i was found and overrun and devoured by the gods but i wok up in the past in what seems to be when i first met my parents and it seems like they gave me some sort of mask that i lost at a very young age and with this new chance i will be able to save everyone or suffer the same fate that happened

last time.
